Supporting All for Quality Standard IV. Equity & Inclusion

AzCASE recently sent a letter from our Executive Director, Courtney Sullivan, supporting our great Arizona out-of-school time community.

The staff and board of the Arizona Center for Afterschool Excellence will continue to engage in our local and state communities, and try to get answers where we can on matters of policy and the future of programs and funding. We will also continue to do our part in building communities of equity, inclusion and unity. All of the youth, children and families served by Arizona out-of-school time programs need to know that they belong - they belong in our programs.

As part of our support for programs and staff, we have compiled a list of contacts for local professional development providers, staff resources, and youth resources that will strengthen and assist the equity and inclusion of Arizona OST programs. Included is an Afterschool Alliance webinar about bullying that will soon be archived for you to watch at your convenience.

Read the letter in its entirety and check out the resources on our blog:

Grant for Greater Phoenix Area OST Programming

The Inspirement Tribe, with support from the Governor's Office of Arizona and the personal dedication and financial contribution of T. Denny Sanford, is seeking middle and high school applicants to partner on creating a safe space for their students to go when the bell rings.

In addition to helping youth achieve personal success, the purpose of the Inspirement Tribe Grant is to provide three hours of free-of-charge Youth-Impact Programming that includes academic, sports, and personal development plans.

Eligible partners must be Title I middle or high schools in the Greater Phoenix Area.

Congratulations to Lisa Everton of Childhelp!

Every year, we ask for active engagement from conference attendees to make the Arizona Annual Out-of-School Time Conference a continued success. Your feedback and the thoughts and work of the Conference Committee shape the Conference every year and we thank you!

One way that we thank you for your involvement is through a raffle for all the feedback you provide. Congratulations to Lisa Everton for winning this year's tablet!

Stay tuned for more from our visit with Childhelp!

Thank you for all that you do for youth!
