Shine a Light on Your Afterschool Program!

Lights On Afterschool is a national celebration that gives local programs the perfect opportunity to tell your story and show off the incredible work you are doing with the children in your program. This year's national celebration is Thursday, October 18 but we encourage you to plan your local festivities for any day that week that works best for you.

The most important thing is for community members to have a chance to see the important work happening in afterschool. Tucson Parks & Rec's KIDCO program is a terrific example of thinking big for how to get the word out about afterschool. They are hosting a KIDCO Idol contest at a park, inviting families and community members to come enjoy some up and coming talent being fostered courtesy of afterschool.

The key is to invite whoever you think should know about your program but sadly knows the least about what you're doing. It might be the administrators at your school, your mayor and city council, or your state or federal legislator. Simply extend an invitation for them to come visit stressing the impact that quality afterschool programming has on student engagement and the direct link between student engagement and student success.

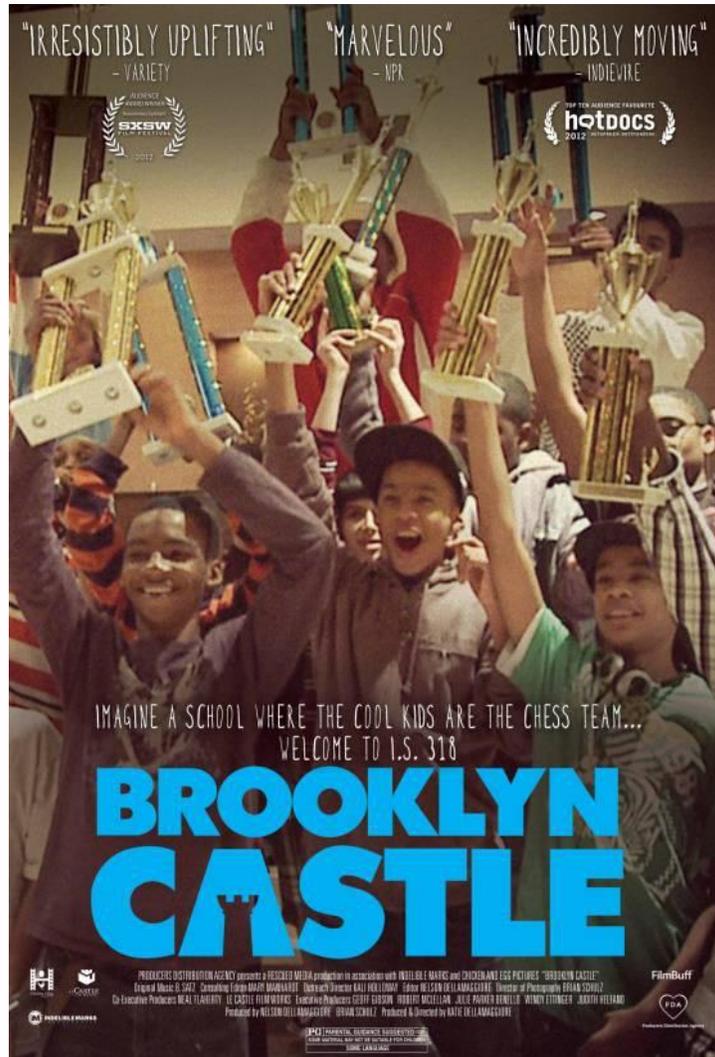

Get started today!

1. Check out the Afterschool Alliance's Event Planning Kit for event resource, media tips, and more.
2. Register your event to make sure others can find it. You'll also get 10 free posters, planning tips, and updates.

"Brooklyn Castle" Shows Transformative Power of Afterschool

"Brooklyn Castle." an award-winning documentary about an afterschool chess program that transforms an inner city public school for the better and then struggles to stay afloat in the face of budget cuts, comes to Arizona this month. The film follows middle school kids at a Title I school in Brooklyn who find success and new pathways to opportunity though chess. The team is a powerhouse on the chess circuit, routinely beating better funded prestigious schools. However, budget cuts across the board in New York City schools leave the team's coaches and school administrators scrambling to keep the kids competing and the program alive.

The film won numerous awards on the film festival circuit this spring, and powerfully presents both the incredible potential of afterschool and the serious challenges programs face staying afloat financially. It is truly a must-see for anyone who believes in the power of afterschool to unlock a child's potential.

"Brooklyn Castle" begins its run at Harkins Shea 14 in Scottsdale on Friday, October 26th. Watch the trailer and learn more here.

Only 35 Days Until the General Election!

There is a little over a month until the general election, which will decide a number of issues crucial to kids and determine the path of the country for the next four years. It's incredibly important that you register, make afterschool an issue this election cycle, and show up to vote on November 6th! Here's how:

1. Register to Vote in Arizona by October 9th!

October 9th is the deadline to register to vote in the General Election on Tuesday, November 6th. In a democracy, it is vital that each of us be active and involved citizens.

Haven't registered yet? Register now to vote in Arizona>>

Not sure if your information is correct? Check now>>

Early voting by mail starts October 11! Sign up to be on the early voting list, which will ensure your ballot is sent to your house and lets you mail it back, skipping the lines on election day! Contact your county recorder's office for help here>>

2. Be an informed voter!

Know what district you're in and who's running

Redistricting changed the boundaries and makeup of Arizona's legislative and congressional districts.

Find out which district you live in here>>

See who your candidates are for all of November's races here>>

Know what the candidates stand for Children's Action Alliance has compiled a legislative report card, so you can see how your legislators voted in issues impacting children and families in the 2012 Legislative Session. You can also find information on student achievement and conditions for children and families in your redrawn district in Children's Action Alliance's 2012 Legislative District Factsheets.

Know what the ballot propositions are about

There are nine statewide ballot propositions to vote on this November. The Secretary of State's office offers a guide, including the text of the proposition and arguments for and against. The Arizona Advocacy Network provides its own non-partisan guide, explaining the background of propositions, summarizing arguments for and against, and listing who is for and against as well as how much money has been donated to each side.

3. Be an advocate for afterschool!

The Afterschool Alliance has released updated versions of its Campaign Toolkit and its Candidate's Guide to Afterschool. Particularly during presidential election cycles, voters' concerns are brought to the forefront of the public debate and widely discussed in the media. But what concerns will be raised? Whose voices will be heard? What will candidates and pundits focus on? It is the voices of people in local communities that drive candidates' campaigns. Download the Campaign Toolkit here>>

Scottsdale Residents: Read City Council and Mayoral Candidate's Views on Afterschool!

AzCASE contacted all candidates running for mayor or city council seats in Scottsdale. Check the left hand news section of our home page for the responses, to see where the responding candidates fall on important afterschool issues.

Access additional election resources, afterschool talking points, and find your legislators on our website.

4. Show Up and Make Your Vote Count!

Early Voting Starts: Thursday, October 11

Learn more about Early Voting>>

Note: All counties in Arizona have the same Early Voting rules, so even though the link takes you to the Maricopa County Recorders website, if you live anywhere in Arizona the same rules apply.

General election: Tuesday, November 6th

Focus on Health

Afterschool programs play a key role in the health and well-being of youth through activities that encourage healthy behaviors, an environment that includes a healthy snack or meal, and opportunities for physical activity. This section features new topics, resources, curriculum ideas and activities to help you ensure youth are fit, healthy, and ready to learn. See a complete list of our afterschool health resources here>>

Every Step Counts!

Did you know that every minute a person walks extends their lives by 1 1/2 to 2 minutes? That can add up to a lot of time if we keep kids up and active! Afterschool programs have a chance to be champions in the fight against childhood obesity. Get kids up and moving around, and you might find yourself gaining a little more time in your healthier future too!

Stay Cool. Stay Hydrated. Stay Informed.

Summer is in full swing! Dehydration, left untreated, can lead to heat cramps, heat exhaustion and very serious heat stroke. Watch kids closely for signs of dehydration, including fatigue, dry lips and tongue, low energy, grayish skin, and lack of tears. Children's body temperature rises faster than adults, so it is essential that they get plenty of fluids to keep them cool-especially when it's hot and humid!

Move on When Ready Expands to More High Schools

The old model of desks in straight rows, one size fits all education is on the way out and nowhere is this more evident than in the new wave of schools adopting the Move on When Ready initiative. Nearly two dozen schools, including a mix of district, charter, and private schools across the state, have signed on to join the initiative, which passed the Legislature in 2010, puts students who are up to the challenge able to participate in accelerated courses based in Common Core-aligned curriculums and lets them take examinations at the end of sophomore year to graduate with a Grand Canyon Diploma. Students can then move on to community college, or continue to take more advanced high school classes to prepare for four year universities.

Afterschool's Role in Ending the Dropout Crisis Gets Screentime

Each year, more than one million kids who enter ninth grade each fall fail to make it to senior year with their classmates because they drop out. The epidemic is particularly marked in Arizona, which in 2011 had 78 percent of high schoolers graduate in four years, a number that drops to 72 percent for low income students. However, PBS is doing its part to shine light on some proactive solutions that are helping kids go the distance and make it to graduation. Last week's national broadcast of programming for American Graduate Day, part of an ongoing project, highlighted 20 national organizations helping kids be successful, including key afterschool programs such as the YMCA, United Way, Boys & Girls Clubs, and more. Research shows afterschool can play a vital role in helping kids make the jump from middle school to high school and make it to graduation. Learn more>>

Robert Wood Johnson Foundation Forward Promise Grants

Deadline: October 10, 2012

The WJF is actively seeking proposals from innovative programs that offer a promising path to greater success for young men of color. They will award up to 10 Forward Promise Innovation Grants of up to $500,000 each for projects with preliminary evidence of impact in the following areas:

- Alternative approaches to harsh school discipline that do not push students out of school;

- Solutions that focus on dropout prevention and increasing middle school retention and high school graduation rates;
- Mental health interventions that tailor approaches to boys and young men who have experienced and/or been exposed to violence and trauma; or
- Career training programs that blend workforce and education emphases to ensure that students are college- and career-ready.

Successful applicants will work in the domains of health, education, and employment and understand that partnerships and holistic approaches are vital to sustainable impact. Applicants should also be poised for growth and/or replication and demonstrate transformative potential.

Civic Engagement Isn't Just For Adults!

As we round the corner into election season AzCASE joins advocacy groups in encouraging you to register and show up to vote on November 6th! However, just because kids can't vote yet doesn't mean it's too soon for them to get in on the action too! Edutopia has curated a selection of great resources to get kids informed about our government and the importance of voting. There are a variety of short videos, as well as links to resources from iCivics to PBS' Election Center and more. Arizona has lagged behind the national average for voter turnout in the past several election cycles, but educating kids about how they can influence their government to make life better for themselves and their families as adults is a good start for turning those statistics around!

Featured Activity

Special Snack

This month's featured activity helps build rounding, estimating, and computational skills while teaching real world budgeting. Find more engaging, relevant math activities from Mixing In Math here.

Grades: 2-6+

Time: 20-60 minutes

Math: arithmetic and estimating with money

Materials: grocery store circulars (1 per group), paper and pencils, calculators (optional)

Prerequisites: familiarity with dollars and cents; reading

1. Introduce the spending limit: We have $20 to spend on snack for all of us. You'll be making a list of what you could buy. Explain how the group will settle on a final shopping list (e.g., voting or choosing the healthiest list).
 2. Distribute grocery store circulars and other materials. Children make their lists, using estimation or calculators.
 3. Finalize the menu: How did you make your choices? How did you stay within budget? With the group, decide on the final shopping list. If possible, bring everyone with you to make the purchases.
